WESTERN HOTEL,

No. 228 MARKET STREET,

Sign of General Washington.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has taken that well known establishment in Market street, next door to the Pittsburgh Mail Stage Office, and lately occupied by Mr. George Vohe. To those who have been accustomed to resort to the house, it is unnecessary to point out its superior advantages. For the information of others he deems it necessary to state that its situation is central, high, healthy and convenient to business; an extensive range of back buildings, consisting of lodging rooms, afford a fine view of the city to the eastward, and admit a free and uninterrupted circulation of air—and what will render them a decided preference in the opinion of many, is the attachment thereto of balconies, constructed as not only to afford pleasant promenades, but easy means of escape in the event of any necessity from any sudden alarm of fire. The great Western Stages start every morning from the door, and on the premises is one of the best Livery Stables in the city, conducted by Mr. John Tomlinson, where travelling horses will be faithfully attended to. With these advantages, and some other improvements and making added to his own unremitted exertions to please, the subscriber confidently hopes and very respectfully solicits a share of public patronage.

To Rent or Sell,

THE BREWERY, pleasantly situated on the bank of the Ohio river in the town of Gallipolis, county of Gallia and state of Ohio.

This Brewery is in complete operation, and all the necessary buildings &c. adjoining the same, such as malt-house, kiln, pump &c. There is a piece of woodland attached to the property, where timber and firewood can be obtained in plenty, for the use of the brewery. Barley may also be had on reasonable terms from the farmers in the neighbourhood, who now attend largely to the cultivation thereof. The brewery is in a fine situation for business lying below the mouth of the Great Kenhawa, from which river any quantity of malt liquors may be sold for the consumption of the Salt works. The buildings and pump are calculated for the establishment of a Distillery, which would be of great advantage in Gallipolis where there is none.

Terms will be made easy and accommodating. For further particulars, apply to

PETER MAGNIER.

The Ohio River.

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that proposals will be received by the subscribers, for improving the navigation of the Ohio River from the city of Pittsburgh to the line of the state of Pennsylvania, a distance of about 40 miles, from this time until the first of December next.

The contemplated improvement will consist in removing the large stones from the bed of the river, and in cutting an artificial channel through the shoals and ripples of a certain depth and width. The work necessary to effect this object would be of a very simple kind. The stones lying in the channel are not attached to the bed of the river—none of them are so large as to require to be blown, and the artificial channel would have to be opened through sand and gravel.

The subscribers reside in Pittsburgh, and would be happy to afford every information upon the subject to any enterprizing persons disposed to undertake the work.

Pittsburg Gazette

FRIDAY MORNING DECEMBER 3, 1819.

One of the pages of this paper was accidentally broken; we are therefore compelled to publish the Gazette with a larger portion of advertisements than usual.

Paisley, (Eng.) Sept. 14.

The shops were all shut last night, as many of their windows were indiscriminately broken by the mob. The lamps were all smashed. The riot act was read about ten; and the troops took their posts. Stones were thrown at the Hussars, and some were thrown into the methodist-chaple, where persons were at worship. The lamp breakers were headed by 3 fellows, crying "Hunt forever."

FROM THE JOURNAL OF GEN. PIKE.

I had the curiosity to visit a silver mine (says Mr. Pike,) and endeavored to get the Spanish officers to accompany me, but always found them backward in those visits, deferring them to some future, time. Attended by my friend Dr. Robinson, I went one day through many of the furnaces near Chihuahua, and observed the manner which was pursued to analyse the mineral and extract the metal. Learnt that the one was brought in bags upon mules from the mine to the furnace, then ground or pounded into small pieces not larger than a nut, and precipitated into water in a seive, which permitted the smaller particles, in the course of several progressive operations, to escape into a tub. From the particles which remained at the bottom of the tub after it had been purified of the earthly particles, there was a proportion of metal extracted by a nicer progress; but the larger parts were put into a furnace, similar to our iron furnaces; and, when in a state of fusion, was let out into a bed of sand prepared for it. In this bed the melted silver was formed into bars, about the size of our pig iron; averaging in value 2,500 dollars each.

The gold was cast into a mould, something like a bowl, and stamped by the king's assayers with its value; generally amounting to 8 or 10,000 dollars.

These bars of gold and silver are received into the king's treasury in payment, and have a currency through the country. But many of the owners of mines, having no use for their money, pile away their bars of gold and silver in their cellars; where it remains for their posterity, of no service to themselves or the world.

The annual product of all the mines is immense; amounting to the astonishing sum of [illegible] dollars.

Yet, notwithstanding this abundance of the precious metals, the necessaries of life, owing to the fertility of the soil, and the deliciousness of the climate, are cheaper than in any part of the United States. For instance:

Flour, by the cwt.	$5
Salt, by the mule load	3
Sheep, each	1
Beeves, each	5
Delicious wine, by the bbl.	15
Horses, each	11
Mules, each	80

The price of all kinds of labor is excessively high; lands very cheap; large districts being uninhabited.

Among the military the following is the annual pay of the respective grades, from a private to a colonel:

Private	$288
Corporal	300
Sergeant	350
Ensign	800
2d Lieutenant	1000
1st Lieutenant	1500
Captain	2400
Major	3000
Lieutenant Colonel	4000
Colonel	4500

MERMAIDS.

Naturalists have hitherto doubted the existence of Mermaids and Mermen:—We have it now in our power to set at rest the doubts of sceptics upon this duplex order of animals, one having been lately discovered basking upon the rocks of Derrygimle, in Erresberg (Cunnemars) after the ebbing the tide.

It is was discovered by a female of the lower order, who was then about four months pregnant; she was suddenly startled by a kind of scream, which was followed by the plunging of an animal half female and half fish, her lower extremities having the formation of a dolphin. This woman was so terrified, as to miscarry, and has never been able to leave her bed since; the tide being out the animal had some difficulty in reaching the water. Thomas Evans, Esq. of Cleggan, a gentleman well known to many of our readers, just arrived upon the coast in time to witness her last plunge. having gained the water, she disappeared for a few moments, but again appeared perfectly composed; Mr Evans had now a favorable opportunity of examining this so long doubted genus—it was about the size of a well grown child of 12 years of age, a bosom prominent as a girl of sixteen; a profusion of long dark brown hair; full dark eyes, hands and arms formed like the human species, with a slight web connecting the upper part of the fingers, which were frequently employed in throwing back her flowing locks, and running them through her hair; her movements in the water seemed principally directed by the finny extremity; for near an hour she remained in apparent tranquility, in view of upwards of 300 persons, until a musket was levelled at her, which having flashed in the pan, she immediately dived, and was not afterwards seen. Mr. Evans declares she did not appear to him to possess the power of speech, for her looks appeared vacant, and there was an evident want of intelligence. As this is the season of the fishery, we are in hopes some of our fisherman may draw her in their nets; as it is extremely probable at the time she was first discovered, she was in search of some place to deposit her young. We understand several depositions upon oath as to this animal's appearance are to be made. We are promised a more minute description, which we shall be happy to lay before our readers.

[Galloway Advertiser.

From Caldwell's Life of Gen. Greene.

As an episode to the story of the bloody conflict at Eutaw Springs, we are presented with the following interesting relation.

"Two young officers bearing the same rank met in personal combat. The American perceiving that the Briton had a decided superiority, in the use of the sabre, and being himself of great activity, and personal strength almost gigantic, closed with his adversary and made him his prisoner.

"Gentlemanly, generous, & high minded, this event, added to a personal resemblance which they were observed to bear to each other, produced between these two youthful warriors an intimacy, which increased in a short time, to mutual attachment.

"Not long after the action, the American officer returning home, on furlough, to settle some private business, obtained permission for his friend to accompany him.

"Travelling without any attendants or guard, they were both armed and well mounted. Part of their route lay through a settlement highly disaffected to the American cause.

"When in the midst of this, having, in consequence of a shower of rain, thrown around them their cloaks, which concealed their uniforms, they were suddenly encountered by a detachment of tories.

"The young American, determined to die rather than become a prisoner, especially to men whom he held in abhorrence [illegible] by whom he had been distinguished and treated so kindly, they both together, with great spirit and self-possession, charged the royalists, having first made signals in their rear, as if directing others to follow them; and thus, without injury on either side, had the address and good fortune to put the party to flight.

"Arriving in safety at their place of destination, what was their surprize, & augmented satisfaction, on finding, from some questions proposed by the American officer's father, that they were first cousins!

"With increasing delight the young Briton passed several weeks in the family of his kinsman, where the writer of this narrative saw him daily, and often listened with the rapture of a child, to the checkered story of military adventures.

"To heighten the occurrence, and rendered more romantic, the American officer had a sister beautiful and accomplished, whose heart soon felt for the gallant stranger, more than the affection due to a cousin. The attachment was mutual.

"But here the adventure assumes a tragical cast. The youthful foreigner, being exchanged, was summoned to return to his regiment. The message was fatal to his peace. But military honour demanded the sacrifice; and the lady generous and high minded as himself, would not be instrumental in dimming his laurels.

The parting scene was a high-wrought picture of tenderness & sorrow. On taking leave, the parties mutually bound themselves by a solemn promise, to remain single a certain number of years, in the hope that an arrangement contemplated might again bring them together. A few weeks afterwards, the lady expired under an attack of the small pox. The fate of the officer we never learnt.

THE LATE JAMES WATT, ESQ.

The following short biographical memoir of this useful man is from the Birmingham Gazette;

By the death of this truly great man our country is deprived of one of its most illustrious ornaments. Mr. Watt may very justly be placed at the very head of those philosophers who have improved the condition of mankind by the application of science to the practical purpose of life. His steam-engine is probably the most perfect production of physical and mechanical skill which the world has yet seen; while in the variety, extent and importance of its applications, it certainly far transcends every similar invention. So great was the activity and power of his mind, that he not only embraced the whole compass of science, but was deeply learned in many departments of literature; and such was the felicity of his memory, that it retained, without effort, all that was confided to it. He was still more distinguished, not only by that highest perogative of genius, promptness and fertility of invention, but also by its rare and happy union with a calm and sagacious judgment, regulated and matured by those habits of patient attention and investigation, without which no production of human art was ever carried to perfection. His manners were marked by the simplicity which generally characterizes exalted merit; he was perfectly free from parade and affectation; and though he could not be unconscious either of the eminent rank he held among men of science or of those powers of mind by which he had attained it, yet his character was not debased by the slightest taint of vanity or pride. He had for many years retired from business, but his mind continued actively employed on scientific improvements. He perfected an apparatus for the medical application of factitious airs: and the amusement of his latter days was the contrivance of a machine for imitating and multiplying statuary, which he brought to a considerable state of perfection. Happy in his domestic connexions, in the complete enjoyment of his extraordinary intellect, respected and beloved by the wise and good of every country, and having attained the great age of 84 years, his useful and honorable life was terminated, after an illness of short duration, rather of debility than of pain, by an easy and tranquil death. Mr. Watt was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh in 1784; of the Royal Society of London in 1785; and a member of the Batavian Society in 1787; in 1806 the honorary degree of Doctor of Law, was conferred upon him by the spontaneous and unanimous vote of the Senate of the University of Glasgow; and in 1808 he was elected a Member of the National Institute of France."

The mortality in the City of New Orleans during the late seasons, has been very great. An extract of a letter published in the Lexington Monitor, states that, according to the report given to the Mayor, by the sextons, upwards of twelve hundred bodies have been deposited in the grave yards during the last sixty days. This is said to be three times the number that were buried in the same time in 1817.

[The following remarkable anecdote was handed to us by a gentleman on whom we can rely, and who is well acquainted with the subject of it.]—W. Spy.

DAVID WILSON, of Portwilliam, Garlatin county, Ky is 81 years of age. He has had four wives, and by them 42 children. His oldest child is but 16 years younger than himself. His second wife had five children at two births in eleven months. Mr. W. has but two ribs in his body, there being a solid smooth bone on each side. He is a man of but small stature and very active. He is a native of Pennsylvania, converses with ease and affability, and supports his family by labor. He has worn a hat 23 years, which is still passably decent.

PITTSBURGH.

Friday, Dec 3, 1819

Doctor GEORGE STEVENSON has been appointed President of the Branch at this place, in the room of Jas. S. Stevenson, who had consented to act one month with a view to this arrangement.

In the article itself in the 'Aurora' in which the Philadelphia members are defended with so much warmth, and in which it is presumed of course the utmost circumspection would be used, the Philadelphia spirit appears occasionally in spite of the writer. Mr. Duane in speaking with considerable self applause of his own editorial labours in support of Internal Improvements, observes in one place that he said years ago "if something were not done, the WESTERN COUNTIES WOULD SUFFER!" There it is gentle reader, with the true Market street twang! western counties indeed! permit us to tell you, sir, that any general act which inflicts a blow on the western counties, is equally detrimental to the eastern section of our state, at least to Philadelphia: the blow must necessarily assess all the properties of the electric stock; let it operate at one extremity of the commonwealth, and it will reach the other without any diminution of force.—Western counties! what has raised Philadelphia to the eminence she now possesses, and enabled her to ornament her squares with so many monuments of wealth and taste? would the small but rich tract of country immediately dependent on her, have raised her to this pinnacle of glory? Western counties! what has crowded her streets for twenty-five years with heavy waggons, and given life and wealth to hundreds of importing merchants? Western counties! what has whitened its rivers with the sails of all Europe, and made it a port almost in spite of nature itself? Western counties! but we will not suffer ourselves to dwell upon this subject as we may involuntarily be led into expressions which may give more offence than we intend. We cannot however help taking notice of this instance of that discrimination which prevails in our great city between the eastern and western interests; when such a public spirited journal as the Aurora is not free from it, what can we expect from the general mass?

"The Citizen of Butler county" and the "Aurora" both agree in deprecating any imprudence in speaking our sentiments of the middle counties, even if our sentiments were correct. Is it possible that things have come to this pass in a republican legislature? that truth must not be spoken for fear of offending the wants of the people? must they be approached with sycophantic fawning, and supplie prayer to induce them to do that which is plainly the interest of the commonwealth? We had humbly supposed that the sacred duties of a legislator were paramount to every other feeling; that on that occasion, on taking their seats, they were bound by a solemn oath to obey the constitution, and to pursue a career which would tend to produce the aggrandizement and happiness of the whole commonwealth. Is it to be presumed that the murmurings, or even the howling of a western journal could make us from mere spite pursue a course different from that which their duty would suggest? Prejudiced and contracted as we believe them to be, we cannot suspect that they would be guilty of any thing like this. We however are resolved as far as our weak endeavours may extend to watch them close and to hold every member up to the public scorn, who does not fall in with those measures of liberality which may go to effect the whole state. Let this be done and we will be satisfied without any local appropriation; nay, we had almost said let it be done and in a few years we will pay into the treasury the amount of the appropriations which have lately so liberally been bestowed on us. But it must be understood expressly, that nothing going to the turnpike or the Ohio river, is to be viewed as a charity to the 'western counties;' the eastern counties are as much interested as the western: and Philadelphia ten times more than Pittsburgh. "A Citizen of Butler county" has introduced the name of Benjamin Franklin; it is a name of evil import to monopolizers, and we can almost see the figure of the old gentleman, in its niche in the public library, shaking its head and frowning on the advocates of the present water navigation. This wise, prudent and venerable statesman recommended that the Schuylkill should be made navigable in the course, or at the end of 100 years from his death; what would this really practical character have allowed for making the Juniata navigable? The Schuylkill runs by the walls of the greatest city in America, through a fine and richly settled country; and yet a man who combined the wisdom of a Nestor, with the acute observation of a Ulysses, allowed a century to elapse from his death, before its improvement should commence. The Juniata is an unimportant stream, which pursues its high and course through mountains, if not the yet which certainly do not at present and cannot for years to come posseas a population sufficiently important to render a great work at all sustainable; Franklin would have ridiculed the idea of doing any thing like what Mr. Breck contemplates before at least 2 centuries should have elapsed, and to attempt to perform that which this man would not sanction ought, at all events in our country, to be viewed as somewhat daring. He had been in Europe and had witnessed the obstacles and difficulties which opposed similar improvements even there where wealth, population and constant intercourse all combined to facilitate their completion; he had visited probably the canal of Languedoc which all the resources and power of Louis XIVth, could not bring to a conclusion, and he had observed in many parts of England roads most wretched and unfinished. His remark about the Schuylkill navigation was the fruit of experience, and we do hope that his mantle may fall upon our next legislature.

If the very genius of manufactures was not drooping into despondency, and if it did not appear like taunting poor Pittsburgh to touch upon any subject that might bring to her recollection the days that are gone, we would say that we have received a considerable accession to the body of useful citizens, in the person of a young engraver who has within a few days established himself among us. His name is William Savory and he has opened his shop in Wood street. We do dot pretend to be judges of his beautiful art, but we have been highly pleased with many little specimens, in its various branches, which he has exhibited to us. We consider him an artist meriting encouragement, & although he cannot expect that kind of employment which we hope in a very few years will be affored in Pittsburgh, yet there is a great variety of little things in his way which almost every individual wants; and we can assure our citizens that they can have them done by this artist with extreme neatness, and on the most reasonable terms.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

OFFICE OF THE N. Y. GAZETTE, Nov. 24

The return of the Hornet with despatches from our minister, and the prudent silence of captain Read on the subject of his charge, has naturally excited a variety of opinions One of our late French papers by the Asia, from Havre (The Journal de Rouen,) contains the following, which, in substance, corroborates the statement contained in yesterday's Gazette.

Translation—"It appears that the Spanish government has not absolutely refused to ratify the treaty concluded with the United States for the cession of the Floridas; it only requires some alterations, and for this purpose are about sending to the United States a new Charge d'Affairs, M. de Campozande, formerly Ambassador's Secretary at London."

In addition to the above translation, a gentleman of this city has favoured us with the perusal of letter from Gibraltar of the 13th ult. from which we are permitted to make the following extract:

'The King of Spain will not ratify the treaty in Madrid, nor make any objections; but appoints an envoy to the United States, to represent his objections, and receive the explanation of the President.'

Extract of a letter from St. Thomas, dated October 29.

"We have news of Barbadoes being demolished, and part of the Island sunk by a harricane and earthquake, since the 21st."

Alarming.—We understand that the escapes of the convicts from the penitentiary has become so frequent, that the most dangerous and hardened rogues care nothing for a conviction. if they are but sent to that prison, saying they can escape from the roads whenever they please. Several have lately escaped and immediately perpetrated other robberies. In fine, it appears that prison has lost its terrors. We hear that last week the police magistrates made a communication on the subject to the mayor and corporation, and that the grand jury have made a presentment on the same subject to the court of general sessions of the peace.

N. Y. Col.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.

On Tuesday last, there was a fall of blackish rain at Montreal, which was found to contain a substance resembling, to the eye, taste and smell, soot; and at noon, the day was so dark as to require lighted candles in the court house, the banks, and in most of the offices of the city. At three o'clock the obscurity was at its climax; and at this moment there certainly reigned a very general awe. Nature had from the morning been sullen and dejected, as if aware of some public calamity, and the crisis now appeared to have arrived. At this moment was heard a cry of fire, and the tocsin was tolled from every bell in the city—the sky was veiled in gloom—the place d'arms was crowded, and towering over the heads of the throng was to be seen the steeple of the French church, which had been struck by lightning, and its ball blazing like a meteor, and throwing out from the foot of the cross, with which it was surmounted, radiations of sparks rendered lurid by the incumbent and surrounding blaze. Every exertion was made to arrest the flames—the ball continued to burn for a long time, being inaccessible to water. At length by great exertions, an engine was conveyed to the interior of the steeple, and the fire happily extinguished at half past 8 in the evening. The cross fell about half an hour before and broke into many pieces Thus terminated, the events of a day, which will be long remembered by the inhabitants of Montreal, and be classed with the dark Sunday of 1782.

SPREAD OF CHRISTIANITY.

Eight of the Society Islands in the Pacific ocean, have totally denounced idolatry, and are becoming professed Christians. In Otaheite alone, fifty places of Christian worship have been erected: and, so strictly is the Sabbath observed, that, on a late occasion, when a ship arrived off the coast, about the time of public worship, the captain not seeing a single individual stirring concluded that the whole population had been extirpated by war. In some cases the inhabitants of one island have carried the knowledge of Christianity to that of a neighbouring island, & have induced them to follow their own example in renouncing idolatry. Infant murder, human sacrifices, & cannibal feasts are abandoned: and in their place marriage is universally respected, parental obligation is felt industry has commenced its labour, the press is at work, a spelling book has been printed, the gospel published: and, to the eyes of admiring spectators is to be seen at once the degraded, sensual, cannibal, idolatrous Otaheitan, sitting under the bread fruit tree, learning his spelling book, reading the scriptures to a missionary in his hut, or bowing before the true God in a Christian temple.

Port Folio.

RULES OF CONDUCT.

Mr. Sampson author of the Brief Remarker, closes one of his admiral essays under this title with the following:

'The great art, is that of living; and the chief science is the science of being happy.' When I say happy, I mean not unalloyed, or perfect happiness, which can never be enjoyed here; but only such a measure of it as our Maker hath put in our power.—And in order to enjoy and secure that measure of happiness, the following rules are worth remembrance.

Be of the overruling Providence of the infinitely wise & good, as well as Almighty Being, and prize his favour above all things

Be it rather your ambition to acquit yourself well in your proper station than to rise above it.

Despise not small gains, nor risk what you possess upon the uncertain change of suddenly increasing it.

If you are in a comfortable way, keep in it; and abide in your own calling, rather than run the risk of an untried one:

Finally, (comprising all in a single sentence) mind to use the world as not abusing it; and most probably you will find therein as much comfort as is fitting for a frail land probatory being, who is only journeying through it towards an immortal abode.

A SHIP THE SHOOL OF SOCIABILITY.

Perhaps there is not a condition in human life in which one is so soon conducted to a knowledge of that infinite skill with which heaven has formed its rational creatures here, for the several purposes of virtue and enjoyment as in the isolated station of a ship's company, exposed to the same hazards, and impressed with a sense of the reciprocal dependencies resulting from their situation. Removed from relatives and friends, the social compact of comrades and brother sailors filling up the aching void; companionship ripens into friendship, and mutual confidence keeps alive the generous affections of each. How often do we see the cheerful glass, drank to the health of a far remote wife and sweetheart, meet the quivering lip and starting tear! and see the hard but sympathetic, hand of an honest messmate extended with assumed hilarity, to grasp that of his brother, in this moment of tender recollection!

How often do you listen there to the cheering tale of absence being forgotten in the heart-felt joy of hearing again the welcome of those they love! It is not a romance. Such are the men who contemplate the wonders of the deep: and such seamen may be found by thousands in Great Britain.

A man named Fisher, in the neighbourhood of Brimley, England, for a trifling wager, lately eat a dozen live wasps, with their stings on, and two pounds of raw salmon, in ten minutes, which he accomplished; he afterwards offered to eat live wasps at 6 pence a dozen; he had consumed nearly two dozen, when his throat and mouth was so much swollen he was obliged to desist.

A Liverpool paper mentions, that "a few days ago. Mrs. Bell a widow woman in Anna, went into a meadow to milk her cow, when another cow with horns, which was grazing in the same meadow, ran at her, threw her down, and was in the act of goring her when her own cow, which was at a distance, came running up, attacked the horned cow with great fury, & effectually succeeded not only in relieving her but in all probability of saving the life of her mistress."

ANECDOTE.

Scruple of Conscience.

An old German Knight, in the first half of the 17th century, when enormous goblets were among the chief ornaments of the rooms and tables of the nobles, sat once at table next to his young wife in a numerous company, where the bottle went continually round, and a large goblet was to be emptied each time, on pain of being contemned as a false brother by the guests, who were used to be very strict in this point. The wife, who had received the most polished education, whispered to her husband, when it again came to his turn to empty an enormous glass, to pour the wine secretly under the table. 'The others will see it," said he His wife therefore, just as he was raising the glass to his mouth, snuffed out the candle, and repeated her request.—Instead of complying, he said with a kind of solemnity, 'God sees it,' and emptied the goblet.

Washington in want of a Penknife.—In Caldwell's life of Greene, p. 65, there is a fact similie of the folowing curious epistle:—

OCTOBER 7th, 1789.

'Dear Sir—I have lost—and cannot tell how—an old and favourite penknife, and am much distressed for want of one—if you have any in your stores, please to send me one—if you have not, be so good as to get one from Dublin. Perhaps Mr. Bayley could furnish me. One with two blades I would prefer, when choice can be had.—I am dear Sir,

To Emigrants.

HAVING associated myself with a considerable company for the purpose of settling a new place in the state of Illinois, opposite the mouth of White river and Patoka, at the foot of the Grand Rapids of the Wabash, (MOUNT CARMEL) with an intention to remove to it, as soon as practicable, I have contracted for the making and burning of 150,000 brick, which I wish put up next season into buildings, and the Bricklayer's and carpenter's work undertaken conjointly, the plaistering and whitewashing included. Lands adjoining the Town, and town lots, at cash prices, and cash, a proportion of each will be given in payment when the work is completed.

Having entered lands for the accommodation of settlers favourable to the views of the settlement, a considerable body adjoining the settlement and town lands, divided into lots of from 10 to 100 and 160 acres each may be had at the Congress prices, with the exception of the interest on the money paid, and a small advance to defray expences, &c.

I wish to employ some persons to enclose or clear lands for me, for which I will pay in lands at cash prices. I have a body of open and timbered lands, that I would lease from 5 to 10 years on advantageous terms to emigrants unable to purchase. A convenient farm to let, by an early application to the Agent may be had.

A canal for boats and water works around the Grand Rapids of the Wabash, a company is forming to commence opening next season, that will afford employment for labourers, and no inconsiderable inducement to capatlist to invest their funds in the establishment. Considerable encouragement and aid have already been tendered for that purpose by emigrants from the Eastern States. The river is open for navigation from this place to New-Orleans all the year.

Application may be made to WM. BEAUCHAMP, the Agent for the establishment, residing in Mount Carmel, or to the subscriber, residing at present in New-port. None need apply but moral characters.

CASH.

I HAVE determined to sell my FARM, at the fork of Chartier's creek, in the county of Washington, 6½ miles from Pittsburgh, conto make it a great object for any one having the command of money. Its advantages in point of soil, timber, water, sugar camps, neighbourhood, proximity to mills. markets, the turnpike road from Washington to Pittsburgh, meeting houses and an excellent college, are well known —Added to these, some enterprising individuals of capital, are now boring for Salt within a quarter of a mile of it, at a lick which has produced salt from the surface, so that no doubt is entertained of their success. This will be useful, not only to the vicinity in general, but it will be of peculiar benefit to the tract hereby offered for sale, as it will afford a constant market for the stone coal with which the land abounds. I will give the purchaser a PATENT in my own name and a general warranty deed. The title is indisputable. I am willing to dispose of eight or ten other tracts, on moderate terms.
